From the President

As we are in the midst of the busiest weeks of earnings season, we continue to see COVID-19 dominate the headlines. Last quarter alone, more than 88% of S&P 500 earnings calls mentioned the pandemic, and the number of companies that withdrew guidance because of its impact on business operations soared more than 20 times. That trend has continued during Q2. While IROs continue to juggle work-life balance while working from home, the Niri Chicago chapter is busy putting out as much useful content as possible on how to navigate during these unusual times. We hope you found our recent virtual events to be helpful. In addition, we are happy to announce a fresh, new Niri Chicago website. Special thanks to everyone on the Communications Committee who helped create it.

At the start of Niri Chicago's 2020-2021 program year, I welcome two new directors to our board: Morningstar's Barbara Noverini, CFA, who will be our chapter's very first advocacy ambassador, and Edelman's Jeremy Cohen. I'd also like to personally thank Terri Anne Powers, who did a fantastic job as president and will remain on the board as chairman. A special thanks to advisory board member Lisa Ciota, who spent countless hours planning programs, writing website content, networking with members in transition and serving our chapter in a variety of other roles over the years. This year's board is rounded out by returning officers and directors: Mike Steele, Elizabeth Allen, Shep Dunlap, Maryellen Thielen, Christine Hanneman, Martin Jarosick, Ruth Venning, Heather Kos, Victoria Sivrais and Heather Wietzel. Be sure to reach out to anyone on the board with any suggestions and feedback on how to improve our chapter.

Our IR Workshop Committee, co-chaired by Zebra Technologies' Shawn Alcaraz and CNO Financial's Jennifer Childe, has been hard at work planning the chapter's marquee annual event. This has always been a full-day in-person event before. However, due to restrictions on the size of group gatherings, we are taking this event virtual – and we'll break it up into two shorter sessions, since many of us are experiencing "Zoom fatigue." The IR Workshop Committee is rounded out by Debbie Koopman, Jeremy Cohen, Julie Mathews, Katie Whitmore, Kendra Chiprich, Rainey Wagner, Sam Swerdlin, Joe Boutross, Kevin Kim, Kevin White and Maryellen Thielen. This year's IR Workshop is designed to provide actionable and thought-provoking insights in how to manage IR for Business as Unusual. Save the dates, register soon and encourage your colleagues to attend.

IR for Business as UNUSUAL

The Niri Chicago Investor Relations Workshop

I am honored to take on the chapter president's role this year. NIRI has rewarded me with some great friendships and working relationships over the years, and I always enjoy talking IR with practitioners. It's my goal to lead our chapter in providing useful content and career development insights. I look forward to connecting with you at an upcoming NIRI Chicago event, whether virtually or in person when we can do so. In the meantime, best wishes for a smooth earnings season and let us know if NIRI Chicago can be of any assistance to you.

Victor Jendras
NIRI Chicago President
