GENERAL GUIDANCE REGARDING TAX BASIS

Cardinal Health has received a private letter ruling from the Internal Revenue Service that the Distribution of CareFusion common stock qualifies as a tax-free distribution for U.S. federal income tax purposes. Accordingly, you will need to allocate the tax basis in your Cardinal Health shares immediately before the Distribution between your Cardinal Health shares and your newly-received CareFusion shares. If you purchased your Cardinal Health shares for cash, the tax basis for your Cardinal Health shares would generally equal the cost of these shares including commissions or other fees. If you received your Cardinal Health shares as a gift, through an employee compensation arrangement, or through some other means, you should consult your own tax advisor to determine your tax basis in these shares. If you purchased or acquired Cardinal Health shares at different times or different prices, you will need to make separate tax basis calculations for each group of shares.

The allocation of your tax basis between Cardinal Health common shares and CareFusion common stock you received in the Distribution is based on their relative fair market values immediately after the Distribution. In determining the relative fair market value of CareFusion to Cardinal Health, remember to account for the 0.5:1 dividend distribution ratio by multiplying the fair market value of a CareFusion share by 0.5. U.S. federal income tax law does not specify how you should determine these fair market values. Fair market value generally is the price at which property would change hands between a willing buyer and a willing seller, neither being under any compulsion to buy or sell and both having reasonable knowledge of the facts. There are several potential methods for determining the fair market values of Cardinal Health common shares and CareFusion common stock. One approach for determining the fair market value may be to utilize the closing trading prices of Cardinal Health common shares and CareFusion common stock quoted on the New York Stock Exchange, respectively, on the first trading day after the Distribution. A different potential approach for determining the fair market value may be to utilize the average of the high and low trading prices of Cardinal Health common shares and CareFusion common stock quoted on the New York Stock Exchange, respectively, on the first trading day after the Distribution. You should consult your tax advisor to determine what measure of fair market value is appropriate.
