We all have that one person on our list who's impossible to shop for. They already have everything they want, or they can't think of anything they want, or they're eschewing material possessions—whatever the reason, there's always that name that keeps you from finishing off your gift giving to-do list. Well, not anymore. Forget physical gifts and give those recalcitrant recipients an experience they'll never forget. Ballooning over Mount Everest, a celebrity chef's cooking class, learning to drive like a racing pro: these memorable presents will satisfy even the most frustrating giftee.
